Our culture, your future

Working for Uncharted, you will be joining a global team with an exciting future. We are moving fast, taking technology to the limits, and reshaping the world of insurance. There is a creative energy and determination about everything we do, a collective commitment to transform an industry that is conservative and tradition based.

That is why we need people who can share our vision, people with the conviction and qualities to make a real difference. Can you rise above the ordinary and the average? Do you have the drive and ambition to take insurance technology to new levels?

- You thrive on challenges and are never short of ideas and insights
- You see problems as opportunities to create something better
- You are confident working on your own initiative but are a committed team member who knows that great things can happen when the right people come together
- You take pride in your work – and the company you work for – and love being part of an organisation that has bold plans and innovation at its core
- You never forget that innovation and customer needs are inseparable
